1. It was reported in August 1952 that the refinery had closed down and the dismantling of equipment begun. ¹ At the present time enough equipment remains so that the refinery could produce in the event of an emergency. The building of the refinery is allegedly being used to store gasoline, heavy oils, bitumen and other unspecified articles for the Korneuberg refinery.

25X1

Comment: It is conceivable that Okeros is engaged in some refining activity. If so, this is concealed by the fact that Okeros is now operating largely under the administration of Korneuburg, and that any production at Okeros would be attributed to Korneuburg.
